Pair, Share!

Share your "topic sentence" statement about Mme. Loisel and The Necklace with your neighbor!

What did you find to be the most difficult part of this assignment?

Journal

Write about a time in your life when you did something that now, looking back, you deeply regret...

As you annotate SI, keep in mind:

Ideas and images of "death"

Anything "red"

Try to keep in mind - what does author want to convey with these images and ideas?

Outside Reading Novels:

You will be asked to choose a book to read outside of class. The purpose or goal of this assignment is to help you discover or re-ignite a love for reading - and this can happen!

You will not be tested on your books, but you will be asked to consider them and reflect on them in some manner. That reflection or small project will be a quiz grade equivalent in the gradebook.

Don't read a book you don't like! Dive in early so that you can change a book if necessary!

We - you and I - need to have honesty between us. I read, you read, it's a pact. The grade is small, the encouragement is big, and I really want you to enjoy yourselves. Let's work together to build a trusting relationship...

What I am reading now: Dark Prince by Christine Feehan

Independent Reading Schedule:

Topic: Supernatural

Advice: Take your book and divide into thirds. Give yourself some soft deadlines to check in and stay on target. I might give you some reminders, but this should be independent, and you need to learn how to manage your own time!

Final due date: 10/7

Please sign the list with your book title and author!
