

Essential question: How does peer pressure shape our perspective of the world?

Agenda:

Journal

Shaming articles - pick two articles to read and discuss!

College essay brainstorming session

Homework: Get your copy of Pride and Prejudice!
Reading schedule posted on my website.

Journal:

Write about your haircuts over the years - go back as far as you can remember and bring it up to present day.

Article Discussion

You should read and annotate/make notes on your articles as you read them, preparing for conducting a class discussion. You will turn in this paperwork to me. It is individual writing, though group discussion.

1. What did your article discuss? (summarize in two sentences)
2. Do you think your article made some good points/was interesting?
If so, what were they?
If not, why were the points not well made?
3. Does the article prompt you to think about things differently? Does it provoke you to have some follow up (like look further into something, define something, check facts, further investigate, etc.?) What and how?

College Essay Brainstorm

Essence Objects in a Box exercise

(The College Essay Guy)

Pride and Prejudice

9/17 - assigned reading up through chapter 19

9/24 - assigned reading up through chapter 35

10/1 - assigned reading up through chapter 48

10/8 - assigned reading up through the end

Complete novel by 10/15

T

Next novel: The Turn of the Screw - Henry James